

Mr. Jones was climbing up Black Hill - then an attractive place with nice trees and pretty flowers, with another boy one afternoon, when his companion drew his attention to a fire away in the town. It was Bentley's Hotel in flames, the precursor of the Eureka affair.